SCARCITY OF HELP IN TEXTILE INDUSTRIES

Trained Workers Lacking-Opportuni-ties for Young Men Gensidered Ex-

The efforts of manufacturers to secure greater production by means of operating their plants on a double-time schedule is often attended with extreme difficulty because of the great scarcity of trained help, says the American Wool and Cotton Reporter, and this is a condition that at times commonts the textile mills of this section. In several of our manufacturing centers the newspapers have a number of advertisements for woolen and worsted operatives for the various departments of the mills, and strange to say, in spite of the much discussed depression in the trade, it is harder than ever before to secure a full complement of help. Another very serious feature that confronts the manufacturer at wresent is the fact that, as the years go by, it is more and more difficult to secure efficient help. made.

Attorney Joseph T. Fanning argued on behalf of several savings department depositors, these being the City of Norwich, Plaut Cadden Co., Mrs. Samuel Kronig and E. G. Hannis.

In order to allow of the conclusion of the arguments on Wednesday so that the attorneys would not have to return the next day, the court length.

difficult to secure efficient help.

The cause is a question of more than passing interest and threatens to become a very serious factor in manufacturing problem. It seem that in a period when mills are not operating their entire equipment there would be a surplus of help anx-lous to find work, but, on the contrary, it appears that there are compara-tively few who can be induced to accept positions offered. In discussing the ever present question of help with a manufacturer a short time since, he bewalled the passing of the native-born mill worker and gave several sug-gestions as to why good help has be-one so scarce.

One of the best reasons advanced was probably the fact that in the recent past there has been a marked tendency toward concentration, with a considerable lessening of the more or less personal and intimate relation between mill owner and employe. As the mills have grown in size and here and judgment given in his favor and the plaintiff appealed. VERMONT PROPERTY SIGNED Secretary Chappell Has the Document the mills have grown in size and become the property of corporations in-stead of being owned in large part by the active resident managers, there is more and more a tendency for the op-eratives to become simply a part of the productive equipment and lose

The lease of that portion of the steamship terminal site at East New London under the control of the Central Vermont railway as lessee of the New London Northern Railroad Co., which had been drawn up from the Central Vermont Co., to the state of Connecticut, was signed by Vice President G. It had already been signed by the members of the sub committee of the harbor commission acting for the state of Connecticut, Secretary F. V. Chappell, who carof Connecticut, Secretary F. V. Chappell, who carried the lease to Boston for the signature of Vice President Jones, returned to New London with the document at noon Wednesday. The directors of the New London Northern Railroad Co. will hold a meeting at New London today and their signatures will mark the passing of the property to the state of Connecticut under lease for 77 years, with purchase outright to follow at the expiration of that period.

On the following day, Friday, it is wages alone. It was customary for the father to take the children into the father to take the children into the mill when they had attained the working age, and it was not at all un-common to find the whole family working for the same manufacturer. Of late this has entirely changed.

Prejudice Exists.

There has arisen in the minds of nany of our native born young people a prejudice against being known as a mill operative, and they are seeking other means of gaining a livelihood. On the following day, Friday, it is planned to hold a meeting of the sub-committee at which the contract with It is not entirely, and with the ma-jority not ot all a question of financial return, as in most cases their earn-ings are far less than they could ob-tain in the mill and in instances innuthe T. But the fact remains that a larger portion of the younger generation are seeking positions outside of the textile industry, with the result that the places they might fill are given to Atlantic terminal at New London will INCOME TAX RETURNS places they might his are given to allens who, in many instances, are in-ferior in mental ability and will never be able to take the positions of re-sponsibility that offer great opportuni-ties to the trained textile worker. Directions for Banks or Collection Commissioner W. H. Osborn has made an extension of time in the mat-ter of the income tax for filing month-iy list returns by the first bank or

With many manufacturers it is be-coming a serious problem to find men of technical and executive ability to of technical and executive ability to fill the positions they have to offer. Very few may be expected to develop from among the ranks. At no time in the history of the textile industry have there been greater opportunties for the young men of good character and ability to rise to positions of trust and responsibility than at present. By application to business, and availing himself of the numberiess opportunities to acquire a technical knoweldge of manufacturers, advancement is sure. To men of this stamp the textile industry offers as many and as great opportunities as al-most any field of endeavor.
